The Studebaker Light Six car in which Studebaker officials are touring the West in the interests of good roads movement. They reached Edmonton yesterday night.

W. G. Palmer, sales manager of the Studebaker Corporation, Atlanta, accompanied by M. V. Rigby, advertising manager of the same corporation, left for the West yesterday morning, the city en route through western Canada to the interests of the Good Roads Association in the United States.

The two officials reached Edmonton by early stage stopping at the Canadian Hotel en route in order to call on the aid of the Good Roads Association here in their movement for better roads.

The two men are here to stimulate interest and bring out action as soon as possible in the opening of the new highway from Edmonton to the coast.

At the present time it is impossible to go to the coast by automobile because of lack of roads.

The Crown, New Page. Detouring the road to the coast, the all-Canada route would be possible if the new bridge over the North Saskatchewan River at Edmonton were opened.

INQUEST HELD UPON DEATH OF HENRY CARSON

As the result of the coroner's inquest held Wednesday afternoon at the office of the coroner of Cochrane Armstrong, touching the death of Henry Carson at Bremer of the G. P. W. Motor Mound, it was decided that no charges be brought against the deceased. The inquest was adjourned to the 15th instant, when the coroner will be summoned to the death by accidentally falling from a freight car which passed over him.

Carson was 28 years of age and had been a resident of Cochrane and Calgary. The funeral arrangements were made by the hands of Carson's wife, who will be accompanied by his wife and son when he is buried.

Carson was to be buried at the cemetery in the League—alphabetically speaking.

Labor And The Stewart Government

The Stewart Government has passed much beneficial legislation for the workers, as you will learn from the following partial list of the betterments actually enacted and put in operation for your benefit.

Workmen's Compensation Act and amendments of 1920 and 1921.

Assistance to Widowed Mothers, 1919.

The Establishment of Free Employment Offices and Bureaux, 1919.

Children's Protection Act of 1920.

Equal Parental Rights over Children, 1920.

Factories Act of 1920 and 1921.

Maintenance of Children and Poor Persons, 1921.

Hospitals Act and Hospital Ordinance Amendments, 1920 and 1921.

Soldiers' Home Tax Exemption Act, 1920.

Mothers' Allowance Act, 1920.

When you come to time of casting your ballot just think these things over and decide for yourself whether you can take chances in changing a government at this time. Another thing to remember is what the "Split" ballot will do for you. Take a look at Manitoba today under group government, and see what you will get. There is business stagnation in that province today because of it. These are critical times and the only way to get safe, progressive and sane administration is to return the Stewart Government. Don't trade horses in the middle of the stream.

Independents Hold Open Air Meeting At The Oliver School

A large meeting under the auspices of the Independents ticket was held in the Oliver School hall on Tuesday evening. The speakers addressed the audience in the open air, and the audience was larger than that usually found around such a delightful night. The speakers were all men, and the audience was composed of men who might be described as the "salt of the earth." They agreed on what should be done to help the cause of the Independents.

Col. Cornwallis spoke.

The Hon. John R. Boyle, Col. Cornwallis, who was in the best of health, was the speaker. The colonel set forth in vivid style the history of the movement in the north, the failure of the politicians of the past to meet the needs of the people of the great territory, and declared that the time had come for the selection of a leader who could speak for the power men whose earnestness and determination were beyond question.

In the great Mackenzie speech, he said, "There is the largest oil field in the world, and there are hundreds of thousands of square miles of land, and the natural gas structure which bespeak the possibility of oil. Already one well has been drilled, and another is being drilled, and the results are encouraging."

That well, however, only touches the surface of the oil field, and a thorough test out the possibilities of the field would require the drilling of a large number of wells, and the expenditure of vast sums of money.

Another speaker, Alderman McLennan, said the problem of the north after independence was the construction of a system of pipe lines. If pipe lines were constructed north to the coast, the great benefit to the wealth of oil in the north would be realized.

The old oil part of the town of Edmonton was bankrupt, and the liquor ticket was doomed to fail. The people could not and did not buy the tickets, and the money was immediately unaccountable.

A. McLean's speech.

A. McLean followed and called the attention of the meeting to the value of the oil fields in the north, and more especially in the centre.

He had been brought up to respect the law, and he wanted to impress upon the children in the same spirit that we had all been brought up to respect the law.

The chief feature of the party in the administration of the law was the fact that the law was administered by a generation of young men and women who had a clear understanding of the spirit of the law.

It was time that the people assert their right and duty to administer the law in its fundamental principles. It was time that we realize that the law was not a personal law, but a public law.

The Independents would benefit the public and give a sense of security to the common road. It was duty of the electors to choose for their representatives men prepared to administer the law.

The old oil part had failed and the administration of the law had been given to a man who failed to do his duty and betrayed their mandate.

We are responsible for present conditions and must do our best to improve them.

THE LEIPZIG COURT.
Voracious Provisions

The French press points out that after all the Leipzig tribunal had been established, the advice of Liberal organizer to "Take care of the people" was indeed received, and no one who failed to do his duty and betrayed their mandate.

After all the terrible scenes in the trials of the accused, in case of the trial of the condemned, the Allies reserve the power to try and punish the war罪犯. The German press like to think that in the Stettin case will probably result in the release of the condemned.

Eva and Uncle Tom Please All in "A Day's Pleasure" starring J. W. Holtz. Greta's production of "Blanche Sweet's 'Tim's Cabin,'" here at the New Empire, promises to make the big scenes of the old stage comedy come alive again. In the motion picture, the old-time handling of scenes would fail short of what they were in the earlier days of our stage, and therefore, only the best scenes of the old stage comedy would yield the desired results nowadays. The comedy here carries a special scenery for the stage. Eva is shown crossing the ice with the blood of her enemies on her hands. She is pursued. All the other big scenes are said to be an entire comedy in itself, and the various touches that go to make up the scenes of the old stage comedy are all there. There will be a street parade filled with hand, chariots, floats, gondolas, dogs and novelties. Seats now on sale.

THURSDAY, JULY 14, 1921

Planks From the U.F.A.

Believing that individual citizenship can only be made efficient and effective through the vehicle of systematically organised groups.

We are United Farmers of Alberta base our hope of developing a social influence and a progressive force on becoming a stabilised and efficient organisation. We therefore place primary emphasis on organisation.

Our organisation is continuously in authority and while through it we form delegations at assemblies or assemblies called, these platforms, these are at all times subject to change by the organisation.

We are a group of citizens going into politics action as an organisation. Our elected representatives are at all times answerable to the organisation.

Thus organised citizenship becomes the vehicle not only of intelligent voting but also of intelligent guiding of elected representatives.

A full recognition of the supremacy of the people in all things does not nullify the importance of a platform.

That no government be considered defeated except by direct vote of want of confidence.

The End of the Road.

The organising genius of the Non-Partisan League in the states of North Dakota has mounted the platform in Alberta, as spokesman for the apparently chief strategy for the U.P.A. political party. It is interesting therefore to note how the commonwealth across the line has prospered under the Non-Partisan as an indication of what may be expected to happen in Alberta should it fall under control of a like public policy.

A few weeks ago the wire brought word that the North Dakota Nazis were in trouble at the bank. The Non-Partisan League Government had spent six million dollars. A group of Chicago and Minneapolis bankers were willing to supply the cash to the organization. To wit: the North Dakota State bank must be liquidated; the Home Builders' Association abolished; the Industrial Commission abolished; the state in general the Non-Partisan "advanced" program had to be scrapped. More than this, none of the borrowed money should go into any other program. Now, North Dakota had to come out of the clouds of socialist theory and get down to business if it wanted the cash.

At that, it was decided that the state would be more likely to submit to the terms and take the money. Which means that they did not see where else they could get it on any less onerous terms. Also that they had to get the cash. The result was that, even at the cost of dishing Townley's League, the League had evidently come to the end of its long rope, and the choice for North Dakota is to stop its amateur or semi-professional "advanced" political dreams have to eat; and there wasn't enough in the treasury to pay the army of officials that the League has quartered in the tax offices of the state. In the dire extremity the League have to go to the board. They are neither satisfying nor filling to a horde of hungry clerks. They are all right in their place, but their place is not in the state. The politicians are the ones who have to eat. Dismal are no substitutes for dinners.

Six million dollars is quite a tidy sum. As it was stipulated that none of the money should go into new schemes, and as it had to be got, it is tolerably clear that the six millions had been already spent; that the bond sale was being negotiated to pay bills already run up by the administration and that the required short term securities of one kind or another. The bonds will serve for the next twenty years or so as memorials of the Non-Partisan era, and a generation may yet come to know the folly with which it pays the annual interest and instalment of the folly of its fathers.

Not that the fathers have shuf- fled off all the Non-Partisan and other consequences from their children. Far from it. They have been paying handsomely for the privilege of conducting an experiment in socialist government for the warning of the world. The Taxmen in North Dakota have quadrupled since Townley began to convert his program into accomplished facts. The six million dollars of non-interest bearing debt that the League house created after they had spent all they could get out of the taxpayers of the state. Like the Drury Government in Ontario, the League became a financial burden to the state, it wrote mortgages with the other.

How was it done? Simply by trying to make the state function as a fair market to everybody, to open up all the channels required for enterprises ordinarily carried on by private means, and run business as a public utility. Under the grand scheme the state had to open up the banks to those people who were not willing to share their earnings and build for themselves, and carry on industrial establishments of all sorts as the underwriters. North Dakota, in short, is showing the world that it had been all wrong from the beginning, that private enterprise was based upon robbery of the community, and that the Sinn Fein leader is offered peace.

An Irish republican has been officially declared impossible, and public opinion in Great Britain is solidly behind the Government on this point. Sir Edward Grey, a man apparently prepared to consider almost anything in reason rather than prolong the process of attrition that has been consuming Ireland. If he is given time to make peace, he will rest clearly upon De Valera and his followers. The Government cannot be held accountable if it is a member of the kingdom; as it is pledged to do if necessary.

It has wound up all such foolish experiments do wind up, and what will be felt for a generation. Socialism will not be very popular in North Dakota for a while. Nor elsewhere if the experience of that state counts for anything outside the border forces of the world's business. Collectivism has never yet anywhere produced anything better than waste, debt and high taxes.

Excusing the Assassins

The court at Leipzig has upheld its reputation in the cases of Lieutenant Gen. Stenger and Major Crusius, charged with having instigated, planned and directed the killing of Mr. Kapp. The court decided that wounded French soldiers had been murdered by German troops in August 1916; that the killing had been done under orders from Gen. Stenger; but that Gen. Stenger was quite incapable of giving such an order, and that Crusius must have been crazy to believe that he could do so. The court accordingly has acquitted Stenger; but sentenced Crusius to two years' imprisonment presumably for having been an accessory to the murder.

It disclaims the farcical criminality of the whole procedure. If Crusius was insane at the time, or if the court believed him insane, he is jailed for doing what he did. If he was not insane he would not have dared commit the murder without knowing that he had orders from Stenger; and in that event both of them should be tried.

The outcome of the trial is quite in keeping with the "fate" that has befallen other war criminals who have come before the Leipzig tribunal for punishment. If the trial in general the Non-Partisan "advanced" program had to be scrapped. More than this, none of the borrowed money should go into any other program. Now, North Dakota had to come out of the clouds of socialist theory and get down to business if it wanted the cash.

At that, it was decided that the state would be more likely to submit to the terms and take the money. Which means that they did not see where else they could get it on any less onerous terms. Also that they had to get the cash. The result was that, even at the cost of dishing Townley's League, the League had evidently come to the end of its long rope, and the choice for North Dakota is to stop its amateur or semi-professional "advanced" political dreams have to eat; and there wasn't enough in the treasury to pay the army of officials that the League has quartered in the tax offices of the state. In the dire extremity the League have to go to the board. They are neither satisfying nor filling to a horde of hungry clerks. They are all right in their place, but their place is not in the state. The politicians are the ones who have to eat. Dismal are no substitutes for dinners.

Six million dollars is quite a tidy sum. As it was stipulated that none of the money should go into new schemes, and as it

Will Farmers Let Them Selves Be Used?

Hon. T. A. Cveran, and Dr. Michael Clark spoke at Yorkton, Sask., on Monday night. The Associated Press reports Mr. Cveran as follows:

"It is something that the campaign against us has been brought to the end for the time at least. The lives of a number of men and women are thereby saved; including, if the past record of the movement and the men who are now nothing but liars in regard to the state of civil war, and who wished for nothing so much as that it might stop. The non-militant majority of the Irish people will be able for the first time to live in safety. There is no assurance that they will not be murdered or burned out of houses and home before government, which has been brought to the door, will not be able to bring about a truce." The meeting was mostly held and the evidence brought up in this way for the most part. The Medicine Hat constituency, which was mentioned.

"Well, this election took place in Medicine Hat and I do not think we can afford to let the grain companies count up to the farmers' heads the amount of money which was lost. The company's position in this matter is not good. I am not for a demand of justice, but I am for a demand of truth, which has always stood so high with me. The men who are concerned with the full facts are known."

With the town and tenement of Mr. Cveran, he said, he evidently has the opinion that which is the head of the company which he is the head of is a sufficient strangle hold on the farmer of the west that he need not fear a demand of justice. He asked whether the grain company conforms or does not conform to the requirements and provisions of the grain act. Instead of either explaining or defining the grain act, he referred to the Royal Commission at Fort William, which stated that his company had placed false bottoms in the terminal elevator bins in preparation for the annual grain crop. This was pointed out to the result of the Medicine Hat election as his answer to the charge. With all due respect, that is not quite good enough.

The main point of the western crop on its way to market is not a matter merely between Mr. Cveran and Mr. Meighen. It is not even a matter merely between the United Grain Growers and the grain companies. The issue of intense interest to every citizen of the west is the ownership of the grain crop. The property of the western grain crop depends, in large measure, on the successful marketing of the grain, and the prosperity of the community depends upon its success. When the company that markets the largest proportion of the western grain crop makes itself the owner of the grain crop, it is the owners of the grain crop from the farmers through undergrading and over-dockage, by putting false bottoms in their elevators, that is a material of national as well as individual importance.

If there had never been a grain act; a grain commission; or a Royal Commission of enquiry, the affidavit that the Grain Growers' Grain company put false bottoms in the terminal elevator bins to conceal the amount of the overages taken from the farmers utterly condemns Mr. Cveran as responsible head of the company as it has been. The law is clear. The law was specific as to time and place and occasion. As yet it has not even been defined. The failure of Mr. Cveran to deny it and to give an explanation in connection with further inquiry is evidence that not only is that statement true, but that there are other facts connected with the handling of grain by his company which will not stand exposure to the light of day.

The Medicine Hat election do not in any way alter the damning character of the facts as sworn to the Royal Commission. The Medicine Hat election was not the fault of the United Grain Growers. No doubt any farmer in Alberta would claim that they may achieve in the present provincial contest will also be claimed by Mr. Cveran as the result of his policy of concealment of terminal elevator overages by putting false bottoms in the bins.

BUFFALO BILL SCOUT HERE IN WILD WEST SHOW

Life in the Early Days Is Well
Depicted in Tex-Mex
Show

Vern Tantlinger, former United States Scout, who helped Buffalo Bill in his Wild West Show, is now in Edmonton with the Tex-Mex Show, which is the manager and director. He and his wife have enjoyed the West and its performances greatly. Tantlinger has been in the early days of the show and it is nearly impossible to tell the difference between him and the other performers. Tantlinger has been in the Ringling Brothers circus and also for the last two years has been on trips to South America with his own troupe. He has never seen a Wild West show of any size or reputation in the road. Tantlinger gathered together the cream of the Western cowboys and Indians and put on a very interesting performance. There are 27 horses in this show and they carry 27 riders, which is very good for a Wild West show.

Champion woman bucking horse rider of the world, is here. She has won first place in nearly every performance. Bill Lorretta, the Queen of the Mountains, who took the Silver Plate last season, supplies all the comedy during the show. The comedy is so funny it keeps the crowd in an uproar throughout the show. There is an exhibition of trick riding and fancy shooting that few can equal, and it is very well done. The show, although many are thrown into the air, is a great success. The rope spinner par excellence, adds a great deal to the performance, and there are several bronco riders,

Showing Of Sheep and Swine At The Exhibition Surpasses All Former Years In Entry Numbers

Competition Very Keen Throughout—Quality in Both Sheep and Swine Best Yet—Entries Twice as Large as in Former Years—Local Breeders Take Good Share of The Prizes

The showing of sheep and swine at the exhibition was undoubtedly the largest and best that has ever been seen at Edmonton. In some cases the competition was so large in both sheep and swine as to make it difficult to judge, and the quality was not always up to standard. However, the average opinion being that the quality of the entries was equal to that in the west. Competition in all classes was very keen throughout, and the quality was not always up to standard. Although there were several outside breeders, the local breeders did very well. The reserve going to Butterfield Livestock Ranches, Idaho, W. J. Head, had a large share of the best, and showed up well.

J. G. Muirhead and Sons, of Oregon, had large entries in Hampshire, and the competition was very keen, and took most of the first prizes as well as the championships. The West Swan Stock Ranches Ltd., of Calgary, had a large share in every class and showed up well.

J. G. Muirhead and Sons, of Oregon, had large entries in Hampshire, and the competition was very keen, and took most of the first prizes as well as the championships. The West Swan Stock Ranches Ltd., of Calgary, had a large share in every class and showed up well.

In the Flock, Ramboots and Cheviots were fairly well represented.

The improvement in the quality of the swine, particularly in the young animals, was very noticeable.

The fact that most of the breeders are culling their herds to produce the best, and producing longer hogs was also readily apparent.

In the past four or five years there has been a premium for the best, and the classes have increased throughout the country catering to the popular demand have been held.

The competition was very keen in the Flock, Ramboots and Cheviots and the results are very gratifying.
